Recommendations:

- Both teams shake hands after the game.
- Do not leave any child unattended after the game; ensure all players have a ride home.
- It is a good idea to create a snack schedule so that all parents may contribute. Allergies should be determined, if any, and communicated to all parents.
- Having fun is more important than goal scoring. Use this opportunity to teach players good sportsmanship, safe play and respect for each other, their opponents and the coaches.
- Respect the other coaches; all of you are involved because you care and want your respective teams to experience maximum enjoyment from the game.
- Write out your practice plan and use shorter skills building activities versus longer, repetitive exercises; keep your drills short, 4 to 6 minutes is optimal to keep interest up.
- Don't worry if an activity doesn't immediately produce desired results, use positive encouragement and the results will come.
- Keep drills simple and use simple language. Explain the activity, but keep it simple.
- Have fun, remember that you are an ambassador that leads by example.
